4 Read the passage below, and answer the questions which follow:

‘And what about the other ways in which we devote attention to our bodies? Do you think that a philosopher attaches any importance to them? I mean things like providing himself with smart clothes and shoes and other bodily ornaments; do you think that he values them or despises them – in so far as there is no real necessity for him to go in for that sort of thing?’

5

‘I think the true philosopher despises them,’ he said.

‘Then it is your opinion in general that a man of this kind is not preoccupied with the body, but keeps his attention directed as much as he can away from it and towards the soul?’

‘Yes, it is.’

10

‘So it is clear first of all in the case of physical pleasures that the philosopher frees his soul from association with the body (so far as is possible) in a way that other men don’t?’

- DIONYSUS: Charon! [No response.] Charon!! Charon!!! [No response.] Well, he's not Charon much about us, is he?
