SECTION ONE: AUGUSTUS

Answer ONE of the following three questions.

EITHER

1 Read the passage below, and answer the questions which follow:

My sons Gaius and Lucius Caesar, whom Fortune snatched from me by Fate while they were young men, were for my honour designated consuls by the Senate and people of Rome when they were in their fifteenth year, on the basis that they should enter office after five years, and the senate decreed that from the day when they were led into the forum they should take part in the councils of state. Furthermore each of them was presented with a silver shield and spear by all the Roman equites and hailed as princeps iuventutis.

To the Roman plebs per man I paid 300 sesterces under my father's will, and in my own name in my fifth consulship I gave them 400 sesterces from war booty, and again in my tenth consulship I paid out 400 sesterces as a gift per man from my patrimony, and in my eleventh consulship I made twelve distributions of corn purchased at my own expense, and in my twelfth year of tribunician power I gave them 400 sesterces per man for the third time. These gifts of mine never reached fewer than 250 000 citizens.

(Res Gestae Divi Augusti)

(i)	Who were the parents of Gaius and Lucius Caesar (line 1)?	[2]
(ii)	Why does Augustus refer to them as 'My sons' (line 1)?	[2]
(iii)	Who were the equites (line 6)?	[2]
(iv)	What was the significance of the title princeps iuventutis (line 7)?	[2]
(v)	'my father' (line 8). To whom is Augustus referring here?	[1]
(vi)	'tribunician power' (line 12). In which year was Augustus given tribunician power for life?	[1]
(vii)	What were Augustus' aims in publishing the Res Gestae ? Using this passage as a star point, explain how far you think he succeeded in these aims.	ting [15]

OR

3 'I had no more power than others who were my colleagues in each magistracy.' Explain how far you agree with this claim by Augustus. [25]

SECTION TWO: VIRGIL

Answer ONE of the following three questions.

EITHER

4 Read the passage below, and answer the questions which follow:

At these words she broke off and rushed indoors in utter despair, leaving Aeneas with much to say and much to fear. Her attendants caught her as she fainted and carried her to her bed in her marble chamber. But Aeneas was faithful to his duty. Much as he longed to soothe her and console her sorrow, to talk to her and take away her pain, with many a groan and with a heart shaken by his great love, he nevertheless carried out the commands of the gods and went back to his ships.

By then the Trojans were hard at work. All along the shore they were hauling the tall ships down to the sea. They set the well-caulked hulls afloat and in their eagerness to be away they were carrying down from the woods unworked timber and green branches for oars. You could see them pouring out of every part of the city, like ants plundering a huge heap of wheat and storing it away in their home against the winter, and their black column advances over the plain as they gather in their booty along a narrow path through the grass, some putting their shoulders to huge grains and pushing them along, others keeping the column together and whipping in the stragglers, and the whole track seethes with activity. 15

(Virgil, Aeneid 4)

(i)	Who appeared to Aeneas telling him to leave Carthage?	[1]
-----	---	-----

- (ii) How has Dido learnt of Aeneas' plan to leave Carthage?
- (iii) Explain what impression Virgil gives of the Trojans in lines 7–15. You should consider both their actions and the way Virgil describes them. Make three points. [6]
- (iv) After this passage, Dido asks Anna for help. Give two ways in which Anna tries to help her sister.
- (v) 'It is very difficult for an audience to admire Aeneas in Book 4.' Using this passage as a starting point, discuss the extent to which you agree with this statement. [15]

SECTION THREE: JUVENAL

Answer ONE of the following three questions.

EITHER

7 Read the passage below, and answer the questions which follow:

In an age when each pimp-husband takes gifts from his wife's love (if she can't inherit by law): and is adept at watching the ceiling, or tactfully snoring, still wide awake, in his wine, will such things suffice? When a rake who's lost his family fortune on racing-stables still reckons to get his cohort? Watch him race down the Flaminian Way like Achilles' charioteer,	5 reins bunched in one hand, showing off to his mistress who stands beside him, wrapped in his riding-cloak!
Don't you want to cram whole notebooks with scribbled invective
when you stand at the corner and see some forger carried past	10 exposed to view on all sides, in an all-but-open litter, on the necks of six porters, lounging back with the air of Maecenas himself? A will, a mere scrap of paper,
a counterfeit seal – these brought him wealth and honour.	45
Do you see that distinguished lady? She has the perfect dose	15 for her husband – old wine with a dash of parching toad's blood.
Locusta's a child to her; she trains her untutored neighbours to bury their blackened husbands, ignore the gossip.
	(Juvenal, Satire 1)

- (i) Give two reasons Juvenal has already mentioned to explain why he writes satire. [2]
- (ii) 'A will, a mere scrap of paper, a counterfeit seal these brought him wealth and honour' (lines 13–14). Explain what Juvenal is referring to here. [2]
- (iii) From this passage, find three examples of Juvenal's satiric technique. Write out the example, identify the technique and explain its effect. [6]
- (iv) Using this passage as a starting point, discuss the different ways in which Juvenal presents women in his Satires. [15]
