

Section A

Answer Question 1.

- 1 In most societies there are a variety of family structures but the basic unit is the nuclear family made up of parents and children. Larger units that include wider kin are known as extended families. These families can have vertical and horizontal structures.

Some sociologists argue there has been an increase in family diversity due to factors such as changing fertility rates, increasing divorce and the increase in single person households. Increased migration has also contributed to family diversity.

- (a) Define the term horizontal structures in relation to the extended family. [2]
- (b) Describe two reasons for an increase in single person households in some societies. [4]
- (c) Explain how migration has contributed to the increase in family diversity. [8]
- (d) Assess the view that the extended family is less significant today than in the past. [11]

Section B

Answer either Question 2 or Question 3.

- 2 Explain and assess the view that childhood is a distinct stage of life where children are protected from the adult world. [25]
- 3 Explain and assess the view that family life benefits males more than females. [25]

BLANK PAGE

---

Permission to reproduce items where third-party owned material protected by copyright is included has been sought and cleared where possible. Every reasonable effort has been made by the publisher (UCLES) to trace copyright holders, but if any items requiring clearance have unwittingly been included, the publisher will be pleased to make amends at the earliest possible opportunity.

To avoid the issue of disclosure of answer-related information to candidates, all copyright acknowledgements are reproduced online in the Cambridge Assessment International Education Copyright Acknowledgements Booklet. This is produced for each series of examinations and is freely available to download at www.cambridgeinternational.org after the live examination series.

Cambridge Assessment International Education is part of the Cambridge Assessment Group. Cambridge Assessment is the brand name of the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate (UCLES), which itself is a department of the University of Cambridge.