READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

An answer booklet is provided inside this question paper. You should follow the instructions on the front cover of the answer booklet. If you need additional answer paper, ask the invigilator for a continuation booklet.

Answer two questions.
You should spend about 15 minutes reading the passages and questions before you start writing your answers.
You are reminded of the need for good English and clear presentation in your answers.

All questions in this paper carry equal marks.
1 Spoken language and social groups

The following text is a transcription of part of a BBC Radio football phone-in programme, hosted by journalist Jason and ex-footballer Rob. In this conversation, John has called in to give his views on the match between West Ham and Everton in the English Premier League.

Discuss ways in which the speakers are using language here to communicate and how their language is affected by the context. You should refer to specific details from the transcription, relating your observations to ideas from your wider study.

Jason: lets go to john whos a west ham fan (. ) hi john
John: er (. ) good evening jason
Jason: good evening john

John: erm very (. ) yeah it is (. ) im actually coming (. ) im coming home from the (. ) west ham everton game today and we were very unlucky to did not win the game because we (. ) were lucky to come away with a draw after we (. ) creating several chances and todays team we had adrian in goal instead of randolph and er you know i think i think we er we just er (. ) were lucky to not (. ) unlucky not to win the game and er you know to stop er and er (. ) to stop everton from scoring (. ) quite a few chances if you know what i mean

Jason: do you want slaven bilic to stay john

John: yes i do because i mean i mean i get sick and tired of (. ) newspapers saying we going to be getting inzaghi (. ) we going to get jaap stam (. ) we’re going to get mancini they know nothing about west ham (. ) bilic does because (. ) he played for the club you know and you know bilic does because (. ) he played for the club you know and you know what i mean

Jason: rob what do you think

Rob: ive got no idea what (. ) to be fair john started this conversation by saying they should have won and then he was saying they were lucky to get a draw (. ) which one was it john

John: i think it was a bit of both really

Rob: what (. ) a bit of both (. ) make your mind up

John: yeah i think er unlucky to win (. ) not to win the game

Rob: right (. ) ok
Jason: what about bilic rob↑ (1) do you back him rob↑
          //
Rob: yeah i dont like anybody (.) i dont like to see any manager get the sack (.) yeah of course back him (.) thirteenth in the league (.) might be a bit low for west ham but why (.) you know hes doing a decent job
John: er yes
      //
Jason: listen (.) john thank you very much indeed

Notes:
1 adrian, randolph: West Ham players
2 slaven bilic: West Ham manager
3 inzaghi, jaap stam, mancini: other managers rumoured to be possible replacements for Slaven Bilic
4 karren brady: West Ham vice-chairman

TRANSCRIPTION KEY
(1) = pause in seconds
(.) = micropause
underlined = stressed sound/syllable(s)
// = speech overlap
↑ = upward intonation
English as a global language

The following extracts are from reviews of the book Why English?, which is a 2016 collection of essays by a group of academics and English teachers.

Discuss what you feel are the most important issues raised here relating to the changing use of English as a global language. You should refer to specific details from the passage as well as to ideas and examples from your wider study.

Extract A – from The Asian Review of Books

The spreading use of English around the world is evident to both English and non-English speakers alike. The papers in this collection, individually and jointly, take the position that the promotion of English is often, if not usually, a manifestation of post-colonialism, an instrument of oppression (political or otherwise) and a danger to less-favored languages.

The papers largely take it as written that linguistic diversity is a good thing without really explaining why. The flipside of arguing that no language is ‘better’ than any other is that it then does not matter if one speaks one or the other: what would be the harm if everyone ended up speaking English? No one would any longer be at a linguistic disadvantage. This sounds dystopian, and perhaps it is, but it could also be argued that the current division of the world into English haves and have-nots is a major cause of inequality.

Those who are troubled by the (over-) emphasis of English in the local educational system will find here arguments and examples that can be used to question policies and press back.

Extract B – from The Financial Times

Why English? has much to recommend it. With schools and universities in Latin America, continental Europe and Asia rushing to embrace English, it is appropriate to ask whether they are going about it in the right way and for the right reasons.

The writers repeatedly stress that they are not opposed to students learning English. Indeed, they welcome it. But they object to the practice, particularly in African countries, of attempting to teach children in English from early on. They cite repeated research showing that children learn more effectively if they start their schooling in their mother tongue. They not only acquire greater facility in subjects such as mathematics and science; they also end up learning better English if it is introduced as a foreign language and slowly integrated into their lives.

The problem for the writers, which they acknowledge, is that many parents around the world refuse to accept this. They demand English early. One of several examples they cite is a school in Islamabad that taught Urdu in the early years, while devoting 15 per cent of classroom time to English. The school planned to increase the proportion of English teaching gradually until the children were thoroughly bilingual. The school said its mission was ‘to reclaim and create our own agenda instead of selling out to alien cultures’. It had to close. Its founder said: ‘The bulk of people did not want what we were offering.’ People note that the elites in their societies make sure that their children speak English and understandably ask: if it is right for their kids, why not for ours?
TURN OVER FOR QUESTION 3.
3 Language acquisition by children and teenagers

The following text is a transcription of part of a conversation between Emet and K’ets. They are twin girls, aged 6, and are talking about being twins and then about their two older sisters.

Discuss ways in which Emet and K’ets are using language here. You should refer to specific details from the transcription, relating your observations to ideas from your studies of language acquisition.

Emet: its nice (.) to be (.) twins because (1) if youre not twins (1) like for quite a while you (.) have no one to play with

K’ets: yeah (.) because like (.) like if somebodys older than you (.) erm (.) like (.) they (1) they like

Emet: get out of playing

K’ets: theyre like (.) theyre like not interested in the things that little ones is interested in and like (.) like if youre twins (.) youre like both the same

Emet: yeah

K’ets: like if youre triplets (.) its even (.) like a bit better (.) its like if theres more of you and youre all the same age (.) its (.) good (1) its nice

Emet: what if youre (.) quadruplets

K’ets: yeah (.) like thats (1) thats a really good thing to be

Emet: yeah

K’ets: but I dont know if you can get them naturally if its like

Emet: you dont get them much

K’ets: no theyre very unusual I think

Emet: yeah (1) one little boy is (.) not (.) rare (.) its not very rare

K’ets: thats common

Emet: yeah

K’ets: like (1) its very annoying if youre like (.) like if you have an older sister or brother and they like (.) like (.) because they like (.) dont like playing with toys any more when they (.) when you get older (.) erm (.) less playing with toys and like (.) the problem is with them (.) they just (.) they just dont get (.) if (.) if they didnt share bedrooms i think theyd get on much easier and (.) yeah

Emet: well (.) my older sisters are just (.) annoying (1) actually

K’ets: well (.) like (.) theyre just not even here (1) its like they dont even live in our house
Emet: yeah

K’ets: they come here like (. ) every time they come (. ) she comes here we’re sleeping because its // Emet: she comes back so late

K’ets: and thats because her school is very far and it takes a lot of time to get back and (. ) erm its like (2) hmm (2) five dozen miles away

Emet: five dozen miles

K’ets: yeah

Emet: dozen is twelve

K’ets: exactly (3) did you just forget that

Emet: but (. ) five dozen miles

K’ets: yeah

Emet: you mean yards [laughs]

TRANSCRIPTION KEY
(1) = pause in seconds
(.) = micropause
underlined = stressed sound/syllable(s)
// = speech overlap
[italics] = paralinguistic features
↗ = upward intonation