FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Can students take dictionaries into the examination?

Candidates are allowed a simple translation dictionary.

What support materials are available?

Syllabus

Specimen question papers and mark schemes

AS/A level Standards Booklet- - this contains examples of marked student answers to AS and A level questions and has a commentary from senior examiners

Question papers and mark schemes

All the above are available from CIE Publications.

How many hours contact time do you recommend for AS/A level?

Over a two year A level course approximately 5 hours per week of teaching time would be sufficient. Students will be expected to do individual work outside of this time.

I'm having trouble locating some of the Core Study articles referred to in the syllabus.

Can you help?

We are unable to send you copies of the Core Study articles listed in the syllabus because of copyright regulations. However, if you are unable to obtain these articles, then there are two texts which are particularly useful in providing the necessary teaching material:

Key Studies in Psychology by Gross, R (Edition 4, 2003)

This book provides a comprehensive account of many (though not all) of the required studies. Some are reproduced in full and others reduced to manageable proportions. The text also contains full evaluations and background notes, and is recommended as being made available to students for reference if it is not selected as a main reader for the course.

Introducing Psychological Research by Baynard, P & Grayson, A (Edition 2, 2000)

I am teaching AS Psychology for the first time and I'm looking to you for some guidance on the order of teaching topics.

It is up to you which order you choose to teach the studies in the course. However, if you are planning to teach the full A level we would recommend that the Core Studies are taught before the Specialist Choices, even if students take all 3 exams in the same session.

Are there any Psychology conferences for the syllabus?

There are no seminars or conferences specifically arranged for the CIE syllabus, but general support for teaching Psychology can be found from The Association for the Teaching of Psychology (ATP). The ATP is mainly concerned with the teaching of psychology in schools and colleges. It arranges events for teachers and produces a range of helpful publications. Contact details for the ATP are as follows:

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

In questions such as ‘Outline two types of response of abnormal affect due to trauma’, should the answer be two different types of abnormalities (mental disorders of this category) or two clusters of symptoms of one mental disorder of this category?

Candidates could give two responses/symptoms for one type of trauma or they could give two symptoms that different responses have in common. For example, ‘recurring phenomena’ is a general response to trauma - or it could be a symptom of the more specific PTSD. Whatever approach taken by the teacher will be fine; either approach will be marked as correct.

Several of my Psychology students want to sit both the A level and AS level examinations in the June session. However, if they don’t do well in the A level paper but do so in their AS level, can they drop the A-level mark and keep the AS level one?
Your students would need to be entered for the A level option. If they fail the A level they would be awarded a compensatory AS providing they had achieved enough marks on Paper 1 and Paper 2 to achieve an AS grade. However, if they achieved a grade on the A level (i.e. did not fail it) but it wasn’t as high a grade as they would have liked, they can’t then receive an AS. An alternative option that you might wish to consider is entering your candidates for the AS papers in one session, then entering them for the A level papers in a later session and carrying forward the AS mark.

Does the CIE syllabus include any coursework or practical investigations at AS?

There isn’t any coursework for AS (or A level). For AS the question papers are based on the 20 core studies listed in the syllabus.

Is there any way I could get hold of some mark schemes or sample essays?

In terms of support materials, please refer to our website for a publications order form.

The ‘Standards Booklet’ is a document that contains sample answers, and a senior examiner’s commentary on how marks were awarded for these answers.

Other publications available are examiner reports, past papers and mark schemes. When ordering these you will need to quote the session (e.g. November 2006) and the syllabus code 9698. For past papers you will also need to quote the paper numbers, e.g. Paper 1 and Paper 2 for the AS level.

There are specimen papers and mark schemes available on the website, but please note that the format of Paper 1, Section B is a little different now with 4 parts to each question rather than 3.
