

ENGLISH A: LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE – STANDARD LEVEL – PAPER 1 ANGLAIS A: LANGUE ET LITTÉRATURE – NIVEAU MOYEN – ÉPREUVE 1 INGLÉS A: LENGUA Y LITERATURA – NIVEL MEDIO – PRUEBA 1

Monday 5 May 2014 (morning) Lundi 5 mai 2014 (matin) Lunes 5 de mayo de 2014 (mañana)

1 hour 30 minutes / 1 heure 30 minutes / 1 hora 30 minutos

INSTRUCTIONS TO CANDIDATES

- Do not open this examination paper until instructed to do so.
- Write an analysis on one text only.
- It is not compulsory for you to respond directly to the guiding questions provided. However, you may use them if you wish.
- The maximum mark for this examination paper is [20 marks].

INSTRUCTIONS DESTINÉES AUX CANDIDATS

- N'ouvrez pas cette épreuve avant d'y être autorisé(e).
- Rédigez une analyse d'un seul texte.
- Vous n'êtes pas obligé(e) de répondre directement aux questions d'orientation fournies. Vous pouvez toutefois les utiliser si vous le souhaitez.
- Le nombre maximum de points pour cette épreuve d'examen est [20 points].

INSTRUCCIONES PARA LOS ALUMNOS

- No abra esta prueba hasta que se lo autoricen.
- Escriba un análisis de un solo texto.
- No es obligatorio responder directamente a las preguntas de orientación que se incluyen, pero puede utilizarlas si lo desea.
- La puntuación máxima para esta prueba de examen es [20 puntos].

Write an analysis on one of the following texts. Include comments on the significance of context, audience, purpose and formal and stylistic features.

Text 1

OK! CAUGHT UP WITH BIG BROTHER1 WINNER BEN!

Date posted: November-16-2012 14:00 Comments: 0

Congratulations on your win!

Oh my God, thank you so much! I can't believe it. This is the most amazing experience that has ever happened to me, and the way that it came out all in all is just thrilling.

5 Are you still running on a high?

I've officially run-out. I love OK! magazine – I'm just like ... oh my God!

How did you guys spend your final day in the house? Was it bittersweet?

10 No, I was really quite keen to get out of there. I was ready for the next stage of my life. Whilst I walked around the house and made the most of it and felt privileged to be there, it became a lot harder in the last 48 hours ... I thought, 'Am I going to be the winner, am I going to be the loser?

15 What's going on?' It was scary.

How did you feel when you realised that you had won?

I hyperventilated! They read out that I was the winner and I literally felt like my head was going to explode – the amount of sweat that poured out of my head when I got on stage! It was just the most amazing experience, it doesn't settle in. It never kicks in when you get told that you're the winner of something like this, there's only one and there was an incredible list of people in there that were trying to win this program. The fact that I got to that stage was quite amazing.

What was it like being left alone in the house after Layla was evicted?

Once Layla was gone I was terrified. I was like, 'How long am I going to be in here for?', and time stood still. I then felt overwhelmed by the fact that I had won.

25 Did you take any mementos from the house for yourself?

Stacey gave me this Humpty Dumpty² set, which was by my bed at night and I took that, but apart from that, I haven't taken anything. I think I'd be in trouble with the big chief – with Big Brother.

20

Was it fun exiting the BB house with host Sonia Kruger?

When I saw Sonia in there I thought, 'I'm going to lose my mind'. Mainly because for me Sonia is like an Australian icon and I hadn't really had much of a chance to meet her. When I went into the house I only said two words to her and then disappeared. To meet her and then have that one-on-one chat was incredible.

You wore your Nicole Kidman shirt last night ...

Yes, I wanted to wear it in, but they said to me no I couldn't, and they chose a different outfit for me. I think once you get to the point you're in the final three, you get to have more say in what you wear. Nicole Kidman ... when I was eight years of age, I was obsessed [...]

So you were a big fan from day one?

Not like a crazy fan ... If she was at a party I was at I wouldn't even walk up to her and talk to her. I'm not some crazy person who wants to be her friend or anything, more I like the way that she speaks and talks about being an Australian and talks about family. I think that she's been quite a strong role model and a good presence in my life. It felt right to wear something like that. It's a signed picture – she signed it for me.

You said that being part of the final three, with Layla and Estelle, was hard.

I think the reason why the last part was very hard was that I think in lots of ways – while I think Estelle is an incredible person – she jarred on me quite considerably. It was just really hard to be in this environment where you've probably been put in there to clash against someone, the personalities just don't click. She just kept saying things that weren't really what I believe to be true in the last couple of days. It was just hard to be sitting there, the three at the end and feeling like, 'Why am I here when you are making something that's so amazing so difficult'.

Adapted from the website of OK! Magazine Australia (2012)

- Analyse both the questions and the answers in this interview to show how Ben is presented and how he presents himself.
- Comment on the attitudes and values expressed here, particularly with respect to celebrity.

40

Big Brother: a reality TV game show in which a group of people live together in a large house, isolated from the outside world. To win the final cash prize, a contestant must survive periodic evictions and be the last one remaining.

Humpty Dumpty: egg-man character from the nursery rhyme that begins, "Humpty Dumpty sat on the wall, Humpty Dumpty had a great fall".

Text 2

5

10

15

20

William Morris, English textile designer, artist and writer, was invited to speak to the Trades' Guild of Learning, an organization founded in 1873 by artisans and skilled workers to provide themselves with vocational and further education.

And Science – we have loved her well, and followed her diligently, what will she do? I fear she is so much in the pay of the counting-house, the counting-house and the drill-sergeant¹, that she is too busy, and will for the present do nothing. Yet there are matters which I should have thought easy for her; say for example teaching Manchester how to consume its own smoke, or Leeds² how to get rid of its superfluous black dye without turning it into the river, which would be as much worth her attention as the production of the heaviest of heavy black silks or the biggest of useless guns. Anyhow, however it be done, unless people care about carrying on their business without making the world hideous, how can they care about Art? I know it will cost much both of time and money to better these things even a little; but I do not see how these can be better spent than in making life cheerful and honourable for others and for ourselves; and the gain of good life to the country at large that would result from men seriously setting about the bettering of the decency of our big towns would be priceless, even if nothing especially good befell the arts in consequence: I do not know that it would; but I should begin to think matters hopeful if men turned their attention to such things, and I repeat that, unless they do so, we can scarcely even begin with any hope our endeavours for the bettering of the arts.

Unless something or other is done to give all men some pleasure for the eyes and rest for the mind in the aspect of their own and their neighbours' houses, until the contrast is less disgraceful between the fields where the beasts live and the streets where men live, I suppose that the practice of the arts must be mainly kept in the hands of a few highly cultivated men, who can go often to beautiful places, whose education enables them, in the contemplation of the past glories of the world, to shut out from their view the everyday squalors³ that the most of men move in. Sirs, I believe that art has such sympathy with cheerful freedom, open-heartedness and reality, so much she sickens under selfishness and luxury, that she will not live thus isolated and exclusive. I will go further than this and say that on such terms I do not wish her to live. I protest that it would be a shame to an honest artist to enjoy what he had huddled up to himself of such art, as it would be for a rich man to sit and eat dainty food amongst starving soldiers in a beleaguered⁴ fort.

I do not want art for a few, any more than education for a few, or freedom for a few.

Extract from a lecture The Decorative Arts, Their Relation to Modern Life and Progress, London (1877) the counting-house and the drill-sergeant: business and the military

Manchester ... Leeds: large industrial towns in the North of England

squalors: dirt and poverty

beleaguered: under siege

⁻ How might the concerns Morris raises in his speech have been relevant and important to his audience?

⁻ Comment on the techniques and devices the speaker uses to persuade and engage the audience.